FULLER WORLD OF THE FUTURE

G. R. Snyder

Now chemical wonders, helicopters and cars are being widely acclaimed as the means for creation of a post-war prosperity. Undoubtedly all these will play a notable part, but with each passing month it becomes abundantly clear that government circles in all the United Nations are counting on the "food plan" as the key to continued prosperity and good will.

President Roosevelt started the strategy idea rolling when he convened the United Nations Food Conference at Hot Springs. The Conference was a remarkable success and created a precedent for the efficient handling of international food will meetings. Since the Conference, great enthusiasm for the principles outlined has been aroused in Great Britain by Sir John Boyd Orr's book "Food and the People" and the new motion picture "World of Plenty" sponsored by the British Ministries of Information and of Food.

The "I'm from Missouri" type of personality will be very skeptical of the success of the "More and Better Food for All the World" idea, and undoubtedly many great obstacles will have to be overcome. However, the war has taught United Nations statesmen how to work together and also how to coordinate the efforts of the people along desirable lines. The general idea behind the food plan is that even in the most prosperous nations great masses of the people are not getting enough of the health foods. In countries of huge populations like India and China the majority of the people are always perilously close to actual starvation. It is estimated on the basis of 1941 figures that in the United States the fruit and vegetable output will have to be increased by about 75 percent, milk by about 39 per cent and eggs by 28 per cent to feed the whole population on an adequate health standard. On a world wide basis it is estimated that the production of these protective foods would have to be increased by between 10 and 200 per cent. As to the situation in Canada, the Advisory Committee on Reconstruction suggests that increased food consumption and improved nutritional levels could be obtained by providing children with free milk and free mid-day meals at school, also by the establishment of cheap factory canteens.

Increased production of food will require huge increases in production of farm machinery. Better distribution of food will demand improved transportation facilities. Thus, at the end of the war we would be literally beating swords into plow shares and tooling up tank and aircraft factories for tractor and farm machinery production. Chemical factories would make fertilizer in place of explosives; liberty ships would be carrying food to Europe, China, India and other needy lands. In other words, the new food policy will be a self-starter for a movement to pull agriculture, industry and trade out of the trough of post-transition depression and set them on the road to an expanding world economy.

On hearing of the food plan, the average citizen immediately asks: "But where would the money come from to pay for the food we would ship to needy peoples?" and again, "If we start feeding the people of highly populated countries to the extent that they become healthier and live twice as long (average life expectancy in India is 27 years on basis of 1930 figures, won't they soon crowd the rest of us off the earth?" To the first objection Sir John Boyd Orr replies that conjuring wealth for oneself out of someone else's scarcity is as dangerous a pursuit for nations as it is for individuals. Trade in food involves trade in other commodities and a well-fed world will be a prosperous world. To the latter objection he claims that according to world history, as a country becomes prosperous there is a reduction in birth rate, apparently a result of people's desire to get more pleasure out of life and to see that their children get a better education and reasonable opportunity for pleasure and health.

A strong point in favor of the food plan is that the good neighborhood influence on international politics and will accelerate the march of mankind towards the higher civilization which science has made possible.

Perennial Wheat

Despite the fact that Russian perennial wheat won a place on the CBC coast to coast network, it is not news. Russian plant breeders have, for many years, been investigating the possibilities of perennial wheats produced by crossing wheat with certain species of Agropyron, the genus to which couch grass, crested wheat grass, etc. belong.

Canadian plant breeders, likewise, have produced perennial wheats from the same or similar crosses; but they are not optimistic about the prospect of producing a commercially desirable perennial milling wheat.

In an article such as this, it is impossible to deal adequately with the technical problems involved. Aside from the perennial habit and, perhaps a measure of drought resistance, practically all the characteristics we require in our milling wheats are to be found in hard red spring varieties. The chance of producing a high quality perennial by crossing wheat with Agropyron is so remote that we may dismiss it. Hybrids thus produced belong to a species quite distinct from both parents. Crosses between the new hybrids and our standard varieties are highly sterile and, again, the prospect of success is remote.

Suffice it to say that perennial wheat is probably in commercial production in Russia. It is a fairly safe bet that the quality will not meet the exacting requirements of Canadian and British consumers. The money spent on plant breeding in Canada is mere loose change in comparison with appropriations in Russia. Satisfactory perennial wheat is not an impossibility; but at best it will require plenty of time and money.

WEEKLY LETTER

WINTERING SUGGESTIONS FOR BEEKEEPERS

The active season of honey gathering for the bees is practically finished. The sources of nectar and pollen have rapidly disappeared this year of drought and heat and there is now very little the bee can collect from the fields. The honey crop while fair and of good quality was not a heavy one in this district.

For the next six or probably seven months bees will be on relief, absolutely depend on their owners for food and shelter. Every colony of bees put away into wintering quarters during this fall is a potential for 1946 and each should go into winter in such a condition that it may be taken out next spring as a producer and not as a boarder.

Each colony should have at least forty pounds of food besides pollen when packing for winter is finished. Any excess over this amount is just an extra assurance against starvation. When feeding sugar to supplement the bees own gathered honey stores remember that six pounds of granulated sugar made into a syrup, two parts of sugar to one part of water, furnishes about five pounds of a red food.

Bees do not hibernate in the true sense of the word but live through winter or period of resting in a semi-dormant condition consuming quantities of food and moving from place to place in the brood chamber keeping the brood nest proper in contact with food supplies. When the temperature in the hive is around 57 degrees Fahrenheit, the bees form a cluster for warmth. If the temperature falls much below 57 degrees the bees at the centre of the cluster will generate heat in order to keep up the temperature which nature seems to require. This generation of heat is at the expense of food supply and bee energy. Honey bees have a given amount of energy only, they cannot replace any that is lost so it is therefore imperative to conserve it as much as possible during winter so that the surviving bees long enough and be strong enough to resume normal activities of the colony life in spring. Waste of energy may be caused by insufficient population in the fall, unwholesome food stores for wintering, unnecessary disturbance after the winter cluster is formed, and inadequate protection from weather conditions. The first two factors should be taken care of by the end of September, the others may be attended to a little later provided colonies are in winter quarters by the end of October.

Re-enact Last Spike Ceremony

FIFTY-NINE years after he, as a boy, witnessed the driving of the last spike, completing the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's and Canada's first transcontinental railway line at Craigellachie, B.C., Col. Edward Mallandaine, of Creston, B.C., was an interested spectator as members of the Kinsmen Club of Revelstoke, B.C., re-enacted the historic 1885

"last spike" ceremony as a highlight of Dominion Day celebrations in Revelstoke. Proceeds of events sponsored by Kinsmen during this period were applied to local charities, including the Kinsmen Milk for Britain Fund, and the Revelstoke Civic Centre. From Montreal, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company forwarded to Revelstoke Kinsmen the mallet used by Donald A. Smith (later Lord Strathcona) to drive the last spike. This added further authentic detail to the reconstruction of the 1885 tableau which featured costume garments and flowing, home-grown beards. Col. Mallandaine is shown at right congratulating the youth who impersonated him in the re-enactment of the "spike" ceremony, and in the background are Kinsmen who participated.

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN ITALY

Capt. Bill Hood of Magrath, Alta., serving with a unit of self-propelled artillery, has had some thrills during the Italian fighting. In the battle for the Melfa River, Bill was forward artillery officer with a tank regiment. Trouble came in the form of enfilade machine gun fire, mortars and minefields. Though three of his crew were wounded, Capt. Hood managed to bring fire to bear on the enemy mortars and machine guns. The advance then went on.

RATION BOOK 5 OUT OCT. 14-21

Ottawa, Aug. 28—The Prices Board announced Saturday that ration book No. 5 will be distributed to the Canadian public the week of Oct. 14-21, and said coupons will be included in the new book to cover "emergencies that may arise."

K. W. Taylor, co-ordinator of the foods administration, said the situation regarding rationed commodities was examined regularly every few months to determine their position in the light of any new developments. A study now was being made of the rationed picture to see what action should be taken should the

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Roddick left Wednesday morning for Hughenden, Alta., where "Al" will be teller accountant in the Bank of Montreal there. By a happy coincidence the Manager at Hughenden is D. V. Gilmer who was accountant here for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Roddick will be missed by a wide circle of friends in Raymond where they have both been very active. We wish them the best of everything in their move.

The board's announcement said it was generally felt that it would be wiser to reduce the quota of sugar to industrial users than to cut the regular ration to consumers.

NOTICE TO EMPLOYERS AND THEIR MALE EMPLOYEES

By an order signed on August 15th, 1944, by the undersigned Minister of Labour under authority of National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations:

1. Commencing August 22nd, 1944, every employer is required to check the documents held by each newly engaged male employee, within 7 days of the employee's engagement, to determine if such employee possesses documents to show that he is in good standing under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations (that is, in relation to the Military Call-up);
2. Every employer must report on Schedule 9 to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division, concerning any employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
3. Every employer is required similarly to check the documents held by each male employee newly engaged between May 1st, 1944, and August 22nd, 1944, and to report to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division by August 29th, 1944, on any such employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
4. Any male employee here referred to, is required by the Regulations to present his documents to his employer for purposes of inspection;
5. Penalties are provided for any employer or male employee who fails to comply with these Regulations.

By an earlier order, employers were required to check the documents held by their male employees, and to report by May 1st, 1944, on doubtful cases as well as cases where employees did not possess documents. The procedure for the present continuing check, although being notified to employers in "Notice to Employers and their Male Employees", which is now being mailed, is identical with that set forth in "Employers' Guide", which covered the check made before May 1st, 1944.

Employers are asked to remember that they do not report on men who do possess the necessary documents—only on those who fail to present documents for examination, or where there is doubt that the document presented actually proves good standing.

The employers of Canada co-operated very satisfactorily on the first check, made up to May 1st last. This co-operation was decidedly helpful, and is very much appreciated. Further co-operation is now earnestly requested.

Schedule 9 and details as to documents which prove good standing, are available through the Employment and Selective Service Offices.

These Chefs Turn Out 75,000 Pies A Year

PASTRY-MAKING being the fine art that it is, as any housewife who has slaved over a hot stove will agree, it should occasion little surprise that as Chief Pastry Chef for the Canadian Pacific Railway's sleeping and dining car service, the company has a graduate of the Ghent (Belgium) School for Chefs. He is Henry De Rycke, shown right, with his four assistants and some of the pies.

So the next time you sit down in a C.P.R. diner and order pie, whether it be chicken, mince, blueberry, apple or what have you, recall that you will be eating the pastry of Henry De Rycke (pronounced Rye ah-ke-ee) who has been a pastry chef in such romantic places as Monte Carlo, Oxford and Holland, to say nothing of Canada. "From Vancouver to Saint John—to Boston, Quebec City, too—they eat my pie!" Mr. De Rycke tells you with a sweep of a flour-dusted hand.

Mr. De Rycke enrolled in the Ghent School in 1912, graduated at the end of three years in time to enlist in the Belgian Army on his 18th birthday. Nothing happened to him in the war. "I was no hero," he modestly admits. "I cooked!"

A keen motorcyclist, De Rycke travelled extensively in England and on the Continent after the Great War, came to Canada in 1923 and liked it so well he's never gone back. Right now, in his kitchen, which is, temporarily, one of the kitchen-cars built years ago for the Harvesters' Exemptions to Western Canada by the C.P.R., he and his four helpers turn out an average of 250 pies per day. Affectionately known to all the C.P.R.'s Glen Yards people at Montreal as "the pie car," Henry looks forward to the post-war years when he expects he'll be able to whet the epicure's appetite with French pastry, entrees on the cakes, and so on. Meantime, out roll the pies in an unending stream.
